NO ERRORS FOUND IN FIGURES MADE BY TWO DEPUTIES

Walter Smedley and James Wilcox Finish County Tax Books.

State Board of Equalization in Session.

SOME FURTHER STATISTICS

The recapitulation of the assessor's books for 1907 were completed by Deputies Walter Smedley and James Wilcox this morning, and was forwarded to Frankfort to be passed on by the state board of equalization, which body must report before the fiscal court can fix the tax rate for this year, the total amount of property assessed in the county being $12,962,849. As the recapitulation shows an increase of nearly $600,000 over last year's assessment it is expected that the state board will not make any changes in the valuation.

Before the recapitulation sheets were sent to Frankfort every column of figures was balanced and checked exactly with the books of the assessor, not one error being found, which reflects great credit upon the deputy clerk and assessor who did the work.

The following are statistics taken from the books in addition to those published yesterday:

MORE SUITS FILED TO COLLECT BACK TAXES IN COUNTY

Magistrate C. W. Emery, auditor's agent for McCracken county, is still busy bringing suits for back taxes and licenses, six suits being filed yesterday afternoon against Paducah firms.

Fred P. Watson, the piano dealer, is sued for a $5 wagon license and for failing to assess a stock of musical instruments in 1907 valued at $5,000.

William Banks, a vegetable peddler, is sued for license on four wagons, amounting to $20 for the years of 1906 and 1907.

The Singer Sewing Machine company is sued for license to conduct a sewing machine agency and the additional license of $5 for each agent employed, amounting in all to $30.

The Standard Oil company for license on three oil wagons at $15 each.

M. E. Staten, of 419 Fountain avenue, for a peddlers license of $20 for the years 1906 and 1907.

The Craig hotel for license of $10 for the years 1906 and 1907.

Representative Eugene Graves Made Hard Fight to Take Printing Out of Hands of City Attorney.

Only Bill He Advocated Seriously on Floor of House for Benefit of Local Newspaper, and He Lost.

Frankfort, Ky., March 19. (Special.)—Representative Eugene Graves of McCracken county, lost his rabbit's foot before he reached Frankfort to attend his first session; for he was on the losing side of the only two things he came here to do; elect J. C. W. Beckham United States senator and get the city printing of Paducah out of the hands of the city attorney. The latter project went by the board the last night of the session. It was involved in a second class city charter amendment, taking the city printing away from the city attorney and placing it in the hands of the city clerk. The committee work on the measure was excellent, but Mr. Graves fell down continuously when he tried to rush it through the house in the confusion of the last few hours.

Mr. Graves made an impassioned appeal before the house, declaring that Democrats and Republicans in Paducah were clamoring for the change. He couldn't get the bill away from the committee.

Back of this bill is some interesting history. The authority to let the contract for the city printing originally was in the hands of the mayor, but Fred Woodson, then editor-in-chief of the News-Democrat, of Paducah, had a bill passed conferring the authority on the city attorney, so his paper could get the contract.

That lasted for a term, when that paper lost the contract again. Then Mr. Arthur Y. Martin was elected city attorney. The News-Democrat fought

MISS ELKINS MAY BECOME PRINCESS OF ROYAL HOUSE

Milan, March 19.—Miss Elkins, daughter of Senator Elkins, who, it is reported, will marry the Duke of Albany, will be made a "royal highness" in her own right, and sons born will be princes of the royal house with the right of succession to the throne. King Victor, according to Rome dispatches, is pleased with the match, and will give the couple a royal palace.

IOWA DECLARES FOR TAFT AND TARIFF REVISION IN HER STATE CONVENTION

Allison Indorsed But "Stand-patters" Have no Say in Tariff Plank in Platform.

Des Moines, March 19.—The Republican state convention yesterday elected four delegates at large to the national convention, instructed them for Taft, endorsed Senator Allison for Taft, endorsed Senator Allison for a vote of 672 17-24 to 507 7-24, and approved the plank of the platform calling for a revision of the tariff at a special session of congress.

The Allison people dominated the convention from opening to close and had things their own way throughout. The Cummins people, although defeated in the convention, took especial delight in having, as they declared, forced the stand-patters to indorse the plank calling for a revision of the tariff and they made it a point to frequently remind the Allison people of the fact.

The latter insisted, however, that there were no many revisionists in their ranks as with the Cummins men and declared that the vote in the convention showed conclusively the relative popularity of the two men throughout the state.

It was generally expected before the final session of the convention that there would be a majority and minority report on the tariff, and the Cummins men had prepared to make a strong fight for the administration of the Ohio plank. When the committee actually settled down to work, however, it was evident that the Allison people were determined to endorse the plank themselves and the only fight made on the report of the committee on resolutions was against the endorsement of Allison.

Four members of the committee united on the minority report objecting and fought Mayor Smith; so, as Eugene Graves duly put it, the people of Paducah began clamoring for another change.

MINERS WILL NOT ACCEPT LESS THAN SCALE AT PRESENT

Indianapolis, March 19.—The International convention of mine workers adopted with a few exceptions the senate committee's report. The policy is that separate districts may adopt wage contracts with operators. Such contracts shall be for one year, the scale providing for "not less than present wage rates."

Kentucky's New Law. Lexington, Ky., March 19.—Governor Wilson signed the anti-pool-room bill, which legalizes betting on race tracks during races. The law will be effective on and after June 12.

TOWBOAT CAPTAIN LEAVES DRUNKEN WATCHMAN ASHORE

Captain Buckingham, of the towboat Russell Lord, enforces total abstinence on his boat and will not allow anyone, who has been drinking, on the boat. When the Russell Lord was enroute to take with him on a trip to White river after ties for the Ayer & Lord tie company, every man was searched by the captain and a half bushel of whisky bottles were dumped in the river. Several men were rejected because they had been drinking. A watchman snuggled some whisky on board and when the boat was just below Jopka he came on deck and began to boss everybody on the boat and finally tried to have several of the negro tie carriers haul him over the engine room, but they refused and a fight followed. Three of the negroes were cut about the arms. Captain Buckingham heard of the watchman's action and immediately landed and put the watchman off the boat in the woods.

INCREASE PAY OF TEACHERS PLAN OF SCHOOL BOARD

Will Also Require Teachers to Keep in Touch With Modern Methods.

Business Course Probably Added to High School.

PLANS NOT FULLY MATTERED

According to well authenticated tip teachers and principals of the city schools will come in for a substantial raise in salaries next year. In fact, teachers will be given their choice between getting better salaries or giving way to more progressive applicants.

Although the board has taken no action, plans are already being considered whereby the requirements for positions in the city schools will be put high enough, while reasonable, to demand of each teacher such attention to the professional side of teaching as will gradually raise the standard of efficiency in all departments. Probably a certificate of graduation from some institution of higher education or a normal course and attendance at teachers' institutes will be required. It is well known to the teachers that Supt. J. A. Carnegie urges attendance at institutes and acquaintance with modern methods, and the trustees apparently are willing to co-operate with the head of the schools in getting the best work from the teachers.

A thousand or more dollars may be added to the payroll next year by increases, but whether the increases will be a flat raise all around or the pay graduated according to merit, is not known. More than likely principals will get $5 or so a month more and the teachers a slightly less sum added to their monthly income. That would be a start, but the trustees have a desire to make a more substantial increase when they can.

Business Course. Probably next year a business course will be added to the High school. Other cities have had such a course for years, and it has proved a popular one, as well as profitable to the scholars. A canvass of railroad clerks in the city showed that a large percentage of them got their positions through knowledge gained in a High school business course. The advantage of it is, that while the pupils are acquiring knowledge of the special branches of the course, they are also acquiring a thorough education in English and other branches. An instructor in typewriting, bookkeeping and stenography only need be added to the faculty the first year.

ST. BERNARD COAL CO. REENTERS RIVER TRADE

The St. Bernard Coal company will re-enter the boat coaling business just as soon as the tidple, which is now being built, is completed. About four months ago the St. Bernard Coal company gave up the boat coaling business because of its inability to get cars to carry the coal from the mines at St. Charles to this city, when the company most needed the coal, but now the St. Bernard company has a contract with the Illinois Central to furnish as many cars daily as the contract calls for, to haul coal from the mines to this city. A new tidple is being constructed by the St. Bernard Coal company at the dock on the Tennessee river and boats will be coaled as they were before.

HOUSEBREAKING CHARGE IS HEARD IN POLICE COURT

A peculiar situation was developed this morning in the case against Mrs. Kate Morgan, charged with housebreaking. She was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by H. Hammond, who lives in a double tenement house with Mrs. Morgan. Monday $4 was bid about the house and in the evening $1 was missing. Tuesday Mary Hammond, 14 years old, hid the money in several places, and it is said, Mrs. Morgan questioned the girl, where she placed the money. The key to the front door was hid on the side of the house, and several witnesses swore they saw Mrs. Morgan around where the key was hid, and saw her at the front door of the house. After hearing the evidence Judge Cross thought a jury should pass on the case and recognized Mrs. Morgan for her appearance before the grand jury.

In Police Court.

The docket was: Drunk—Jim Wooldridge, W. J. Cody and George Thomas, $1 and costs each. French of peace—Wesley Pemphilton, colored, continued until tomorrow; Willis Strickland and Frank Strickland, colored, continued until tomorrow. Housebreaking—Mrs. Kate Morgan, held to grand jury. Malleous cutting—Charles Carroll, held to answer.

ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER

Elwood Neel, deputy United States marshal, returned late yesterday afternoon from Caseyville, where he arrested Herman Riley, 63 years old, charged with bootlegging. Riley is accused of selling liquor in Johnson county in Illinois without a government license, and he gave bond before Amos Gardner, United States commissioner, for appearance before the federal court in Danville, Ill., next October.

SUMMER WEATHER TURNS WINTER FOR SPRING OPENINGS

From summer heat to winter is the promise of the weather clerk for the next 24 hours. Yesterday's highest temperature was 82, and 32, or freezing is predicted for tonight. The last three days have been as balmy as spring, but the next three may be as bleak as the depths of winter. Then, too, the equinoctial storms, bringing with them no one knows what kind of weather, are due the latter part of the week, the 21st, so those hasty folk who jumped from dunnets to summer-weights should get out the old garb and have it ready.

The cold spell of today has been a frost for the stores with their spring openings and the countenances of the merchants along Broadway were as gloomy as the skies all day.

"While we shall have a freezing temperature tonight, I think it will not kill the fruit and vegetation," said Weather Observer William Horne man, yesterday. "It won't be severe enough. Last March we had a warm spell starting on the 20th and continuing twelve days, when it was exceedingly warm. Then a cold snap came and lasted until after June 1. Of course, I can't predict what such a freak thing as the weather will do, but I don't look for a repetition of last year's season."

Between 8 and 9 o'clock last night the wind began blowing rather hard, and lightning flashed across the heavens frequently. The patrolmen say the wind became heaviest about midnight, and after it had died down rain began falling heavily. The down-pour continued about 20 minutes. After the rain the weather began getting colder, and when the average Paducahan awoke he jumped out to find his winter clothes. All traces of the spring fever have disappeared, and today everyone walked briskly on the streets.

HOW MAYOR SMITH MADE HOUSE PASS PADUCAH'S BILLS

Stayed With Them Until He Saw Them Signed in Both Bodies That Night.

House of Refuge and Hospital Now Wanted.

$150,000 REVENUE FOR CITY

Perhaps the best satisfied individual today in Paducah is Mayor James P. Smith, who literally fought through the lower house of the general assembly the high license and the police bills, which were in the hands of the committee on rules with 750 other measures, that other people wanted passed just as much as Mayor Smith and the people of Paducah wanted these two.

The license bill will add $150,000 revenue to the city in the four years of Mayor Smith's term. The police bill will enable the city to save several thousand dollars of expense. What the additional revenue to the city will mean is little appreciated outside the city hall. While the revenue has been severely sufficient to meet current expenses, and the last general council was compelled to incur a floating debt to repair the city lighting plant, there are improvements and repairs actually demanded. Mayor Smith has undertaken this year to pay off half the floating debt of $40,000. His idea, as stated today, is to enter with the county on the two projects he outlined to Judge Lightfoot and the fiscal court, a joint county and city house of refuge, and contagious hospital. "There are poor people who cannot gain admittance to the city hospital," he said, "for fear they will endanger the lives of those already there, yet that are in need of attention. There is no place to take them, and it is a reflection on the community that they are allowed to suffer."

"I believe, too, that if the people of Paducah knew how many wails are being brought up amidst criminal and loathsome surroundings, bright little youngsters, they would be horrified. I never appreciated the condition until it was brought to my official notice. We will save money by building such an institution. It would not be a competitor of the Home of the Friendless. It will take care of a class the Home cannot reach, and has not capacity for."

These bills will become laws in 90 days. The city can fix the saloon license at $500 for the second half of the present calendar year, which will yield about $12,250 revenue additional to that already anticipated in the city budget.

How Bills Were Passed. The high license bill was passed Monday in the house, having already passed the senate, but the substitute police bill was still pending in the house when the last session was called to order. The bill, fixing the minimum police force at 20 and the maximum at 75, had passed the senate, but the bill in the house had no maximum and minimum and contained no civil service provision.

In the night Mayor Smith galloped knowledge that the police bill was not on the calendar, and he went to Chairman Klair, of the rules committee. Klair was temporarily in the chair, but he said he would take the floor and advocate the bill. It was called the second one after that and passed.

Then the measure was rushed to the senate, but there pandemonium was reigning. A strong coterie was trying to effect an adjournment to prevent the passage of a house bill, and it was difficult to get a hearing, but the police bill needed senate concurrence, and moreover, it had to be copied.

It was necessary for City Solicitor Campbell, who had been doing yeoman service in the passage of the measure, to split the bill among several stenographers to get the work done, and it cost a good many times more than ordinary stenographer's fees to hurry it up.

No one was listening to anybody else in the senate, but Mayor Smith swung his fist emphatically a few times in front of the right parties and succeeded in transmitting some of his energy and enthusiasm to them, and the bill went through. He sat up with the legislators until 4 o'clock in the morning to see the bills signed.

Mr. F. W. Katterjohn, of the board of public works, will leave tomorrow for Jackson, Tenn., to inspect the roads around Jackson. City Engineer Washington will be unable to make the trip at present owing to the rush of work in the engineer's office.

Labor Leaders. Labor leaders in conference adopted a protest demanding of congress relief from present conditions imposed on organized labor by the supreme court.

The administration bill for the re-enlistment of negro soldiers discharged without honor as the result of the Brownsville affray, was introduced today by Senator Warner.

Another Sale Made.

Mayfield, Ky., March 19.—Eleven hogsheads of association tobacco were sold Wednesday by Salesman Humphries to the American Snuff company as follows: Four at $7; two at $8; one at $8.50; one at $9; three at $10.

Hopkinsville Tobacco.

Hopkinsville, Ky., March 19.—Increased activity was shown by the local tobacco market during the past week. A total of 98 hogsheads were sold at prices which were satisfactory to both buyer and seller. Of these sales 76 hogsheads were sold by the Planters' Protective association and 22 hogsheads by the American Society of Equity. The association has sold 322 hogsheads to date. The sales at the association salesroom were of low grades, lugs and common leaf, and prices ranged from $7 to $10 for lugs, and $10.50 to $12 for leaf. This makes a total of 322 hogsheads sold here to date, and the receipts amount to 2,100 hogsheads. All of the sales made during the week were fully up to the graded prices, while in some instances, where the quality of the tobacco justified, an increase over the grade prices was secured in order to work up the heavy receipts of tobacco, which continue steadily.

Receipts at Clarksville.

As the weather has become spring like and the farmers have begun to run the plow, the receipts of tobacco have grown less. There have been some deliveries during the week, but not very large. The pricing houses are not discouraged by this, as most of the houses have a sufficient quantity to run for some time to come.

The quality of tobacco seen now in the warehouses is indicative of the fact that the prizes have not been idle. All things look prosperous and it is expected that everybody will be satisfied with the result of last year's tobacco growing. Very good weights, good quality and good prices and no advances insure money enough to run through the season.—Leaf Chronicle.

Stones, Coal, Hot Water and Even Guns in Fight

Witness at Hearing Has a Spirited Verbal Encounter With the Defense.

PUT AN END TO COMPETITION

Cleveland, O., March 19.—Stories of hand-to-hand fights, where stones, coal, hot water and guns were used in the encounter between the independent and the Standard Oil company's forces in the early days of the oil industry, for possession of rights of way for pipe lines were told by Lewis Emery, Jr., of Bradford, Pa., who was on the witness stand all day for the prosecution in the government's ouster suit against the Standard Oil company.

Mr. Emery, who also told of the history of the industry, said he entered the oil business in 1865. He recounted the days of the struggling refiners before the advent of the Standard Oil company in 1873, and declared that competition ceased at that time.

Upon cross-examination of Attorney Rosenthal for the defense, the testimony of Mr. Emery was quite amusing at times, as the attorney and the witness had several spirited encounters at reported, brought out by the witness' admission that he had been a life-long opponent of the Standard Oil company and had, in the past few years, testified at great length upon several occasions against the big company.

Won and Lost.

Mr. Emery related in detail his fight for the oil trade, both in the United States and in Germany. In some instances, he said, he won the contest and in others met defeat. This, he said, was particularly true in Philadelphia, where he had a refinery which he said he was finally forced to sacrifice to the Standard Oil company.

Again, in Philadelphia, he said, he conducted a retail business, but in this also met opposition he could not withstand, although he spent a large sum of money and sold oil as low as 2 1/2 cents a gallon. He also stated that one of his pipe lines near Bradford, Pa., was made unprofitable owing to the Standard Oil company offering a premium of 10 cents a barrel on crude oil.

Mr. Emery dwelt at length upon the early formation days of the Standard Oil company.

THEATRICAL NOTES

"The Mayor of Laughland."

Tom Waters, who is appearing this season under the direction of Fred C. Nixon-McDillinger, the astute young manager of the Nixon & Zimmerman attractions, has the reputation of being the "somewhat different" Irish comedian. Singularly enough he is not an Irishman at all, but a Welshman. However, he is a thorough student of all races and a character impersonator whose photographic accuracy makes each type he presents a convincing personality. Irishmen are his natural choice, perhaps, because they give free rein to his buoyancy of spirits and offer a larger field for the merry quip and jest that mark the actor's character. Mr. Waters as Michael Ignatius O'Flynn, the Mayor of Laughland, is really a lovable person, with none of that grotesqueness of make-up that so often distorts rather than accentuates the peculiarities of the Irish physiognomy. In other words O'Flynn, the Mayor of Laughland, is your true, fun-loving, free-hearted and free-handed son of the old sod who is ready to take a joke as well as perpetrate one. The story of the comedy, "The Mayor of Laughland," in which Waters appears at the Kentucky, may be briefly told. O'Flynn discovers that his daughter is about to elope with the son of his arch political enemy, Herman Schultz. Jimmy, the bell boy of the hotel that O'Flynn conducts, is pressed into the scheme and helps the couple get away in an automobile. The balance of the piece is devoted to various plans to secure O'Flynn's approval of the marriage. He finally falls in a trap and is forced to admit defeat. Thus all ends happily, and all the old feuds are forgotten in a grand family reunion. Not much of a plot to be sure, but sufficient to maintain the liveliest kind of interest and incidentally permit the introduction of numerous specialties and big musical numbers. Otto Koser, the veteran German comedian, is seen as Schultz, while Jimmy Short, bell boy, is played in imitable manner by Major Kasper Nowak, the twenty-eight inch comedian who has so long been associated with Mr. Waters. Walter V. Milton is seen to advantage as a peripatetic Thespian, while Charles Fulton looks and sings the part of the young lover to perfection. Pretty little Jessie Morrill is the soubrette and May V. Waters, the stunning Mrs. O'Flynn. Other clever people in the cast are William Hurdine, Elaine D. Gilbert, Belle Turner and Kitty Murray.

"The Red Mill."

"The Red Mill," fresh from its triumphs at the Knickerbocker theater, New York City, where it held forth for an entire year, will be presented here at the Kentucky on March 23. The musical comedy, the joint work of Henry Blossom and Victor Herbert, and presented by Charles Dillingham's admirable company, proved the fourth consecutive success in which these clever comic opera builders have collaborated. The field of action of "The Red Mill" is laid in Holland. The first scene, an exterior, shows the red mill of the story at the edge of the little village in Holland. The second scene, an interior, gives us a look at the home of a well-to-do burgomaster. All the people of the story are Hollanders, with the exception of two heroes who are New Yorkers and are stranded in the lowlands.

Joseph B. Casendon has resigned his position as assistant engineer on the Dick Fowler.

Ed Whitehouse, 27 years old, deck hand on the Charles Turner, fell in the Cumberland river off the gunwale of a barge and was drowned. Whitehouse made Paducah his home and is well known among river men. The Charles Turner is owned by Captain John Ralhus and was up the Cumberland river after a tow of ties and was at lock "A," her tow being cut through the lock when Whitehouse fell overboard.

The towboat Boaz, which struck a bridge pier at Ironton and lost twelve pieces of her coal tow, containing 200,000 bushels, is held up at Dover, Ky., for repairs. The five men who were reported lost reached shore in safety and walked into town meeting the boat. She will probably not complete the trip to Louisville.—Courier-Journal.

The class has put up $300, which will be forfeited if there is any destruction of property in connection with the dinner. Last year's freshman class had to put up $500 for the same purpose. SUPT. J. A. CARNAGEY MAKES REPORT ON NATIONAL EDUCATIONAL ASS'N

Tells What School Men Are Seeking to Accomplish in This Country.

Prof. J. A. Carnagey, superintendent of the Paducah public schools, made the following report of the National Educational association at Washington:

I wish to congratulate the city of Paducah on having a school board that is broad-minded enough to recognize the value of keeping abreast of the best educational thought of the day. Every business and professional man realizes the importance of coming into intimate personal contact with other men working along the same lines as his own. Men in every phase of professional and business activity have their meetings where ways and means of getting the best results are discussed and views are exchanged. Men of business know that in order to meet competition they must not get behind their neighbors, and they send their special representatives when meetings affecting their interests are to be held. These meetings cannot fail to be a source of inspiration to those who attend, and this inspiration and the ideas gleaned from the meeting must result in better methods, and thus a higher standard of efficiency be secured, and the business or organization be made better.

The superintendent of state, county and city schools of the United States, have, for more than thirty years, held an annual meeting in some city. For the first fifteen years of its existence the department of superintendents of the National Educational association held its annual meeting in the city of Washington. Since 1889 the meetings have been held in various cities of the country. For the first time since 1889 the meeting for February, 1908, was set for Washington city. There has been a wonderful growth in the attendance at the meeting since the first time I attended in Cleveland, O., in 1895. Then there were some 250 or 300 persons enrolled. At the last meeting at Washington at least 1,500 persons were present. I am not advised as to the exact number. The newspapers reported that the attendance reached 2,000. At the reception held by the president on Wednesday afternoon about 1,500 cards of invitation to delegates were given out.

The program included three days, and men of national and international reputation appeared and discussed matters of interest to the schools. On Tuesday morning at the first session, the Hon. Joseph G. Cannon, speaker of the house, honored the department by delivering an address of welcome. It certainly was a high honor to have a man of Mr. Cannon's prominence to speak to us on educational matters.

Mr. Cannon emphasized the necessity of local communities paying more liberally toward education. He deprecated the idea of the state's being expected to educate the pupils out of a state fund. This applies particularly to us in Kentucky. What our people need to learn is that if their schools are to improve as they should, they must be supported more liberally by local taxation, as is the case in the states of the north. Kentucky must not depend upon the $3.10 per capita to educate her children. She should, by statute, provide that citizens and county districts should supplement this by taxing themselves so that at least $2 should

MUSIC STUDENTS

Should Have Steady Nerves.

The nervous system of the musician is often very sensitive and any habit like coffee drinking may upset the nerves as to make regular and necessary daily practice next to impossible.

"I practice from seven to eight hours a day and study harmony two hours," writes a Michigan music student. "Last September I was so nervous I could practice only a few minutes at a time and mother said I would have to stop my music for a year."

"This was terribly discouraging, as I couldn't bear the thought of losing a whole year of study. Becoming convinced that my nervousness was caused largely by coffee, and seeing Postum so highly spoken of, I decided I would test it for a while."

"Mother followed the directions carefully and I thought I had never tasted such a delicious drink. We drank Postum every morning instead of coffee, and by November I felt more like myself than for years, and was ready to resume my music."

"I now practice as usual, do my studying and when my day's work is finished I am not any more nervous than when I began."

"I cannot too highly recommend Postum to musicians who practice half a day. My father is a physician and recommends Postum to his patients. Words cannot express my appreciation for this most valuable health beverage, and experience has proven its superiority over all others."

"There's a Reason."

come from local taxation for every dollar that comes from the state. Even then we should be below the average raised in the nation by local taxation for school purposes.

In the papers presented, I was particularly struck by the number of men and women who discussed and advocated manual training for the schools. In fact, the whole of Tuesday afternoon was given to a symposium on "The Place of Industries in Public Education." The persons who discussed and advocated—not manual training simply, but vocational training, training in the elements of trades—were James E. Russell, dean of Teachers' college, Columbia University, New York; Edward C. Elliott, professor of education in the University of Wisconsin; James F. McElroy, president of the Consolidated Car company, Albany, N. Y.; Miss Langley of the school of education in the University of Chicago; Charles H. Morse, secretary of the Massachusetts commission of industrial education, and George H. Martin, the secretary of the Massachusetts board of education. These persons, without exception, advocated the training of children in the elements of trades and vocation in the upper grammar grades and the high schools. Or to sum it up in the words of President Roosevelt, in his address to the department, "To educate boys and girls toward the workshop and the farm, and not away from them."

One could not help feeling that there is a strong tendency throughout the nation to follow in the footsteps of Germany, France and other continental countries in dividing the time of the school day between what we ordinarily call book subjects and some form of handwork. I, myself, feel that we may swing too far in that direction in our schools. Our people in the United States are different from those of continental Europe where the boy usually follows the trade or business of the father and the class distinction is so marked that for generations the sons have followed the same line of work as their fathers. But in free America it is more difficult to decide upon the calling or vocation of our boys. Because a man is a carpenter, there is no certainty that the son will be a carpenter. Hence, it would be difficult to give boys in our vocational schools the training in the elements of the trade or vocation he expects to follow as a man.

I believe that skill in manual work should be emphasized so that the boy or girl can easily adapt himself or herself to whatever form of labor he or she decides upon in the time school days are over, and the time for taking a place in the active life of the world comes.

Another topic of discussion, upon which much stress was laid, by many of the most prominent superintendents was that of securing and holding teachers who are willing to improve themselves after they get into the schools. In many places teachers secure and hold places through the most thugrant favoritism—through pull, either of political influence or of influence of relatives. These teachers having once secured a place, attempt to hold it, whether they are worthy or not. Various plans are adopted in different cities to improve the teaching force. It is found that it is unfair to grade teachers in salary simply upon the length of service. As many of them make no attempt to improve themselves, while others getting no better salaries, are constantly reading, studying or going to summer schools or colleges, thus the better fitting themselves for their work.

The teacher is the important factor in all school work. Good buildings and good text-books are important, but above and beyond these things, stands the well-prepared conscientious teacher, who is constantly striving to improve herself for her work, and who has a higher motive than simply to put in her time, draw her salary and hold her place from year to year.

The consensus of opinion was that the good teachers are worth much more than the people are paying them, and that the poor teacher is expensive at the lowest salary paid. It was felt that teachers who are growing and trying to improve themselves by taking work in corresponding schools, by travel, by attending summer Normal schools or colleges, by systematic reading and study, should be paid better salaries than those teachers who are content simply to hang on, year after year, without taking any interest in preparing themselves for better work.

On Wednesday afternoon, February 26th, the superintendents met in the east room of the White House. It was the intention to pass in law before the president, in order that every one might have an opportunity to shake hands with him, but on account of the crowded conditions of the room and the corridors, it was thought best to change the plan, and have the president address the assemblage. In his usual characteristic manner, the chief executive of the nation in a short, telling speech, paid a high tribute to the work of the public schools and those in charge of them. He spoke of the importance of giving the right training to form good citizens out of the boys and girls of the schools. He deprecated the number of idlers, both the rich glided youths of fashion, who because of their money are useless members of the body politic, and the hobos, who refuse to work, and are

CANTO V.
For a little store 'twas a great big AD.,
And it surely caused surprise

The goods—he had told no lies.

And George M. Good, with a goodly grin,

equally useless members of society. In speaking about corruption in high places, the president said: "They waste their time who wish me to stay my hand in my fight against wrong and corruption." He said that all labor is honorable, and that he would urge the superintendents to see to it that their schools educated young men and young women toward the workshops and the farms, and not away from them. Thus he again emphasized the note that was dominant in the convention—that of Manual Training in schools.

In my association and talks with various superintendents, I gained much useful information about their plans and policies. It is this personal contact and the inspiration that comes from associating with men who are doing great things, that make these meetings so valuable to school men. This friendly intercourse with each other is like the odor of a flower that one can perceive, yet he scarcely knows whence it comes. The set of papers one can read at leisure, but he cannot feel the magnetism that comes from personal presence, unless he attends the meeting. Boards of education in many cities are becoming members as a body, of the National Educational association, and thus securing the bound volume of all the meetings held during the year. This record is then placed in the school library, so that teachers and board members can, at their leisure, read the papers.

I believe it would be a good thing for our own board of education to become a member of the National Educational association, and thus secure the report of all of its meetings, for their own use and the use of their teachers.

The following resolution was adopted by the department: The department of superintendence recognizes the growing importance and increasing necessity for industrial education. It advocates the close adjustment of school duties to the demands of life. The fitting of the child for a life of industry in shop, farm or home ranks next in importance to the building of character, the cultivation of intelligence, and, subordinate to these, the training of the hand, which are the chief aims of education.

This resolution indicates pretty clearly the dominating thought of the meeting—education for efficiency. The statesman, the business man and the school man all agree that this great industrial age demands that we make some provision for industrial training in our public schools. This does not mean that we are to throw aside the old Three-R education, but it does mean that much of the obsolete non-essentials must go, and industrial education given a regular place in the courses of study for all of our public schools. We shall lose nothing of value from the old, and gain much of great value from the new. There is as much mental training derived from the study of the chemistry of the soil, as there is from the study of cube root and subjunctive mood, and vastly more real value to the child. Industrial education is not a fad or a theory of some school man, but it is the demand of this great industrial age. The school men have attempted to ignore the demands by hiding behind their pedagogical creed and the traditions of their forefathers, but the demand is upon us, and it is here to stay. Our schools must be re-adjusted to meet this urgent demand.

Very respectfully,
J. A. CARNAGEY, Supt.

"Pay-As-You-Leave" Car.

A "pay-as-you-leave" car is the product of work on the transit problem carried on for a long time by George Hopp, a skilled mechanic of 187 West street, East Orange, N. J. Hopp says he thinks it will become the "perfect trolley car," and that it will prove infinitely superior to the "pay-as-you-enter" car.

The car will be of the regular dimensions, but its seating capacity will be larger. There is a door in the middle for exit. The entrance for men is by the front door and for women by the rear. The doors are operated by the motorman on the front, who operates a push-button with his foot which slides the door open and lets down a step. The rear door works the same way, but is controlled by the cashier from his post at the exit door.

The middle door is the only opening through which a person can leave the car, and no one can pass through without paying his nickel and operating a turnstile which works the register. The platforms are done away with and the tendency is to keep the crowd moving toward the middle. The car is convertible to summer or winter use.—New York World.

Daily Thought.

"A man's age depends on the ideals
he still cherishes."

Judging from the speeches delivered at St. Patrick's day, the Irish vote
will be about a stand off.

Ollie James seems to have felt the financial stringency more severely
since he consulted a New York specialist.

Senators Watkins' attack on Senator Campbell was all timed to be convincing.

The State Journal has received
from the Taft press bureau "An eloquent table," as it is termed, which shows that of the fourteen states that have held conventions, Taft had 116
instructions to nothing for the other candidates, except Fairbanks, who gets Indiana's 26 votes. The table
may be very "eloquent," as described,
but even the Fairbanks men will admit it is rather convincing.—Kentucky State Journal.

THE OPTIMISTIC VIEW.

Outrages against Kentucky manhood and vested property rights are deplorable, but there is a more optimistic view of these night rider outbreaks. Its very violence may serve
to perpetually correct a condition,
that is in part responsible for it.
Either the night riders will absolutely control the local civil authorities and
put the entire citizenship under duress
of fear, or stronger men will be called into service. Either the night riders
will dominate the state legislature to cripple the arm of the executive, or stronger characters will appear in the halls of the general assembly.

The night riders have shown that civil officers in those counties in which they appear are contemptible, willing
to receive the emoluments of public
office, but disregarding their oaths.
The call for specific aid made upon the
legislators of the state by the governor, has shown that there is scarcely
a real man among them. What legislation they seriously undertook was designed on its face, to encourage
night riding, and to our shame let it
be said, that the people could not control them, but it required the intervention of the tobacco trust to kill the measure.

Night riding isn't wholly mercenary. The misguided individuals who started it, and some of its advocates
today regard it as a "cause." The night riders stand high in the scale
of citizenship and honor beside the
civil authorities and the law makers,
who go on drawing their pay and
playing petty politics, and doing nothing
to uphold the law and re-establish
order in the commonwealth.

Let us work to the end that we may raise up law makers and those sworn
to execute the law, who will be, at least, the peers of the night riders.

FAIRBANKS CAMPAIGN IN KEN-TUCKY.

The Louisville Post looks on Ben Bruner in this wise:

The Lexington Leader, in reviewing the political situation in Kentucky, says:

"The federal and state officeholders
who are managing the campaign for Vice-President Fairbanks in Kentucky
are doing all in their power to drive
the state back into the Democratic

column next November by sending out
professional organizers among the ice-
grocers to incite them against Secretary
Taft by denunciatory speeches, the result of which is sure to be more or less disaffection among the colored
voters and possibly a sufficient falling
off in the Republican vote to change
the result in the state."

This is not the one or only offense
of certain Fairbanks leaders; the secretary of state, while assistant United States marshal under Marshal Louna,
roamed the whole territory, from border to border, in an effort, by his Ciceronian eloquence, to array the state against Mr. Taft. Now he is blatant in his denunciation of federal
officeholders because they will not follow two ex-federal officeholders—
Bruner and Thatcher.

Mr. Bruner Thursday night began
his address by censuring the governor,
declaring that if he (Bruner) was governor—imagine it!—he would
pardon Powers in forty-eight hours.
Governor Willson has been governor
for more than three months, and he has wisely refrained from pardoning Powers.

After Mr. Bruner had made mincemeat of the governor he turned upon
the president and denounced him for the course he was following.

Bruner and Thatcher can do more mischief in twenty-four hours than
the sober-minded, intelligent, sagacious
leaders of the Republican party can undo in a week. There is no more reason for federal officers maintaining perpetual silence than there is for state officers. Men fit for either
position have a respect for themselves,
for their fellow-citizens, for their associates and for their opponents.
There is no law on either statute book
forbidding a postmaster or a collector
or a secretary of state or an inspector
from taking the stump for any candidate, but there are certain intonations
that in the mouths of these officers
become the height of impropriety,
which is often a greater offense than
a direct violation of the letter of the law. Such speeches as were made in Louisville on Thursday by Messrs.
Thatcher and Bruner are characteristic of their anti-Taft campaign. If their relation to the party was thoroughly shown to the public they would have no ill effect, but these gentlemen find publicity through the Democratic newspapers, which, to give importance to such rambling utterances, impute to the Republican party the malice of these two gentlemen.

Neither one of them speaks for
any considerable number of Republicans or for any purpose of the Republican leaders. It is too much to impute design to such speakers, but if there were any possible design, it would be to alienate all independent elements and to reduce the party to the condition it was under the "old
line" leaders when it marched serenely to defeat at the polls, confident
of reward from the federal appointing powers. When Bruner undertakes to discipline Marshal Hulitt, to ensure the governor and to impeach
the president he is unconscious of the absurd position he occupies.

Fortunately the Republicans are not following men of this stamp. They have more serious work before them,
both in state and national politics.
There are numbers of Republicans who believe that Mr. Fairbanks is a fit man for the present emergency,
and there are others who prefer Mr.
Hughes; but these gentlemen are not
striving to prevent accessions to the Republican party; they are seeking to put the party in a position under leaders that they believe will retain for it
the confidence of the controlling vote
which gave Kentucky to the Republicans last November. Such "efforts at eloquence" as were indulged in by Bruner and Thatcher Thursday night,
if approved by any considerable number of party men, will turn the state
over to the Democrats by a big majority.

The school trustees are right about
that bond issue. They are the people's schools and the cost must be borne by the people. They should be allowed to speak on the bond proposition.

It is rather difficult to believe that Harry Orchard was lying in the Moyer
and Pettibone trials, since he has clung to his statement even in the shadow of the gallows.

Some people have a way of getting
what they go after, and Mayor James P. Smith is one of them, even when it is something desirable for the people and he has to get it from the state legislature. The reason in his case
is, that he goes after things with all his might.

In Circuit Court.

E. L. Matlock filed suit in circuit court today to recover $72 from Magistrate C. I. Knott and W. F. Matlock.
The plaintiff claims that W. F. Mat-
lock attached money belonging to him
the attachment being issued by Magistrate Knott, who sustained the process on trial of the case. He claims to have given notice of an appeal
which was taken and the attachment
discharged, but that the magistrate
paid the money over to W. F. Matlock.

J. W. Puckett filed suit to recover
$192.12 which it is claimed was paid
through a misunderstanding in settling a judgment of the circuit court, Puckett paying the amount of the verdict against him twice.

Dr. L. E. Young and A. C. Shelton
brought suit to settle the estate of Sue Egginton.

—Chris King and Leta Locker, of Birmingham Marshall county, were granted a marriage license.

CHAPTER V.

WHEN Barnett came on deck very
early on the morning of June 7,
he found Dr. Trendon already up and starting moodily out at the Laughing Lass. As the night was calm the tow had made fair time toward their port in the Hawaiian group.
The surgeon was muttering something which seemed to Barnett to be in a foreign tongue.

"Thought out any clew, doctor?"
asked the first officer.
"Veit! Chel—pshaw! Jolle! Cell-
men! No," muttered Trendon. "Marrie—Marie—I've got it! The Marie Celeste!"

"Got what? What about her?"
"Parallel case," said Trendon. "Sailed
from New York back in the seventies. Seven weeks out was found derelict.
Everything in perfect order.
Captain's wife's hem on the machine.
Boats all accounted for. No sign of struggle. Log written to within forty-
eight hours."

"What became of the crew?"
"Wish I could tell you. Might help to unravel our tangle." He shook his head in sudden, unvoiced passion.

"Evidently there's something criminal in her record," said Barnett, frowning at the busy schooner astern. "Otherwise the name wouldn't be painted out."

"Painted out long ago. See how rusty it is. Schermerhorn's work, maybe," replied Trendon. "Secret expedition, remember."

"In the name of wonders, why should
he do it?"
"Secret expedition, wasn't it?"

"Fush; that's true," said the other
thoughtfully. "It's quite possible."
"Captain wishes to see both of you gentlemen in the wardroom. If you please," came a message.

Below they found all the officers
gathered. Captain Parkinson was pacing up and down in ill controlled agitation.

"Gentlemen," he said, "we are facing a problem which so far as I know

Rich and splendid streamers of light

is without parallel. It is my intention to bring the schooner which we have in tow port at Honolulu. In the present unsettled weather we cannot continue to tow her. I wish two officers to take charge. Under the circumstances I shall issue no orders.
The duty must be voluntary."

Instantly every man, from the veteran Trendon to the paymaster, volunteered.

"That is what I expected," said Captain Parkinson quietly. "But I have still a word to say. I make no doubt in my own mind that the schooner has twice been beset by the gravest of perils. Nothing less would have driven Mr. Edwards from his post. All of us who know him will appreciate that.
Nor can I free myself from the darkest forebodings as to his fate and that of his companions. But as to the nature of the peril I am unable to make any
conjecture worthy of consideration.
Has any one a theory to offer?"

There was a dead silence.
"Mr. Barnett? Mr. Trendon? Mr.
Ives?"

"Is there not possibly some connection between the unexplained light
which we have twice seen and the
double desertion of the ship?" suggested the first officer after a pause.

"I have asked myself that over and over. Whatever the source of the light and however near to it the
schooner may have been she is evidently unharmed."

"Yes, sir," said Barnett. "That seems to vitiate that explanation."
"I thank you, gentlemen, for the
promphide of your offers," continued
the captain. "In this respect you make my duty the more difficult. I shall accept Mr. Ives because of his familiarity with sailing craft and with these seas." His eyes ranged the group.

"I beg your pardon, Captain Parkin-
son," eagerly put in the paymaster.
"But I've handled a schooner yacht for several years and I'd appreciate the chance."

"Very well, Mr. McGuire, you shall be the second in command."
"Thank you, sir."

"You gentlemen will pick a volunteer crew and go aboard at once."

Spare no effort to find records of the schooner's cruise. Keep in company
and watch for signals. Report at once
any discovery or unusual incident,
however slight."

Not so easily was a crew obtained.
Having in mind the excusable suspicion of the men, Captain Parkinson
was unwilling to compel any of them
to the duty. Awed by the mystery of their mates' disappearance, the sailors bung back. Finally by temptation of extra prize money a complement was made up.

At 10 o'clock of a puffy, mist laden morning a new and strong crew of
nine men boarded the Laughing Lass.
There were no farewells among the officers. Forebodings weighed too
heavy for such open expression.

All the fate of weather seemed to combine to part the schooner from her convey. As before, the fog felt, only to be succeeded by equally rain showers that cut out the vista into a check-
ered pattern of visible sea and impenetrable grayness. Before evening
the Laughing Lass, making slow way
through the mists, had become separated by a league of waves from the cruiser. One glimpse of her between mist areas the Wolverine caught at sunset. Then wind and rain descended in furious volume from the southeast. The cruiser immediately headed
about, following the probable course
of her charge, which would be beaten
far down to leeward. It was a gloomy
mess on the warship. In his cabin
Captain Parkinson was frankly senile—
a condition which nothing but the extreme of nervous depression ever induced in him.

For several hours the rain fell and
the gale howled. Then the sky swiftly
cleared, and with the clearing there
rose a great cry of amazement from stern of the Wolverine, for far be-
ward the western horizon appeared
such a prodigy as the eye of no man
aboard that ship had ever beheld.

From a belt of marvelous, glowing gold, rich and splendid streamers of light spiraled up into the blackness of
the heavens.

In all the colors of the spectrum
they rose and fell, blazing orange,
streak, wonderful, translucent blues
and shimmering reds. Below a broad band of pale blue, like sheet lightning
dived to directly, wavered and rippled.
All the anemous of the northward
blended in one conal but have parted away
before the splendor of that terrible ecstasy of apparition.

On board the cruiser all hands stood
petrified, bound in a stupor of speechless wonder. After the first cry of silence by leeward over the ship. It was broken by a scream of terror from forward. The quartermaster who had been at the wheel came clambering
down the ladder and ran along the
deck, his fingers splayed and stiffened
before him in the lutenity of his panic.

"The needle! The compass!" he
shrieked.

Barnett ran to the wheelhouse with Trendon at his heels. The others followed. The needle was swaying like a cobra's head. And as a cobra's head
spits venom, it spat forth a thin steel blue stream of incense fire. Then so swiftly it whirled that the sparks scuttered from it in a tiny shower. It stopped, quivered and coiled itself
upward until it rattled like a fairy drum upon the glass shield. Barnett
looked at Trendon.

"Volcanic!" he said.

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord," muttered
the surgeon in his deep bass, as he looked forth upon the streaming, radiant heavens. "It's like nothing else."

In the west the splendor and the terror died to the zenith. Barnett whirled the wheel. The ship responded perfectly.

"I thought she might be bewitched,
too," he murmured.

"You may head her for the light,
Mr. Barnett," said Captain Parkinson
calmly. He had come from his cabin,
all his nervous depression gone in the face of an imminent and visible danger.

Slowly the great mass of steel swung
to the unknown. For an hour the unknown glided her. Then fell blackness, sudden, complete. After that ra-diance the dazzled eye could make
out no stars, but the lookout's keen
vision discerned something else.

"Ship ahoy!" he shouted hoarsely.
"Where away?"

"Two points to leeward, near where
the light was, sir."

"They turned their eyes in the direction indicated and beheld a majestic
rolling volume of purple light. Suddenly a fierce red shot it through.

"That's no ship ahoy," said Trendon.
"Volcano in eruption!"

"And the other?" asked the captain.
"No volcano, sir."

"Poor Billy Edwards wins his bet,"
said Forsythe in a low voice.

"God grant he's on earth to collect
it!" replied Barnett solemnly.

No one turned in that night. When the sun of June 8 rose it showed an even beam of prospect except that on the far horizon where the chart showed no land there rose a smudge of dimly rolling smoke. Of the schooner
there was neither sign nor trace.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

Arrested at Mayfield.

Mayfield, Ky., March 15.—Warren
Anderson, a young white man, was arrested on the 14th in Southwest Mayfield on a charge of robbing a jewelry store at a little place called Fornell, Mo. The arrest was made
at the instance of Edward Scheffer,
owner of the store.

Can't Help Harming.

Danville, Ky., March 15.—County
Judge Puryear was somewhat surprised this morning by the unexpected appearance of James Spalding, a young farmer of this county, in the court room with a request that he be locked up to prevent him from doing
any harm. The young man rode in from the country early, and going to Judge Puryear's office before court
time, told him he had for the past few
mornings arisen with the desire to kill
his wife and two children with an ax.
He said he feared that he would eventually give way to this emotion, and
he acknowledged he had burned down
several large barns, and in addition
had destroyed a small store he had once owned. When the desire to murder or to burn came upon him, he declared it was almost impossible for him to resist, and he feared he would
do some violence, if he was not locked

up. Accordingly he was imprisoned
in the county jail, and ordered sent to the asylum
at Lexington.

Taft in the Lead.

Caldwell, Ky., March 15.—At this time, each day bringing the Ninth
district Republican convention, which will be held in this city in May, nearer
and nearer, the fact of the superior
strength of Secretary Taft in this district becomes more and more apparent.

In fact, it seems that in the political
quarter that prevails over the district he is gathering ground daily. Thus far there has been little or no political excitement injected into the contest, as far as this district is concerned, and it may be that no hard fight will be put up by the numerous
of other candidates, on account of Judge Taft's apparent lead over all others. However, notwithstanding the claim that has prevailed up to this time, the followers of Vice President Charles W. Fairbanks are expected to "get busy" and make a fight in the county conventions for their favorite. Besides Judge Taft both Vice President Fairbanks and Governor

Hughes have followers in this district,
but it is not believed that the New York governor has sufficient strength
to get much more in the contest in this district.

Nicholas county Republicans, both
black and white, seem practically of one
mind; they are for the secretary of war. The vice president and Governor Hughes have some following in this county, but they are in few. As it looks now, the county convention,
which will be held in April, will be practically a unit for Judge Taft.

Citizens of Carlisle are working hard to hold the Democratic Ninth congressional convention. This city
is expected to have a candidate before
that convention in the person of the Hon. George P. Wycoff. For the possible identification nomination, the sentiment
of the Democrats of this county is unanimous for Col. William Jennings Bryan.

RUDY'S OPENING

TODAY WAS AN UNPARALLELED SUCCESS IN EVERY DETAIL.

Notwithstanding Inclement Weather Store Was Thronged All Day—Continues Tonight and Tomorrow.

The exhibition of new spring styles at J. A. Rudy & Sons' today marked the end of the earth with her conquering hosts, subduing all people and wresting their treasures for her own enrichment. The richest fabrics from the looms of Egypt and India, neat dresses from Tyre and cunning workmanship in silver and gold from Greece, the most exquisite of its kind could boast, swells the flood of riches that capricious fashion pours into her coffers. But no such wares as were shown at this Broadway emporium today were there. They were not in the world those days.

The city of the seven hills swept the ends of the earth with her conquering hosts, subduing all people and wresting their treasures for her own enrichment. The richest fabrics from the looms of Egypt and India, neat dresses from Tyre and cunning workmanship in silver and gold from Greece, the most exquisite of its kind could boast, swells the flood of riches that capricious fashion pours into her coffers. But no such wares as were shown at this Broadway emporium today were there. They were not in the world those days.

The city of the seven hills swept the ends of the earth with her conquering hosts, subduing all people and wresting their treasures for her own enrichment. The richest fabrics from the looms of Egypt and India, neat dresses from Tyre and cunning workmanship in silver and gold from Greece, the most exquisite of its kind could boast, swells the flood of riches that capricious fashion pours into her coffers. But no such wares as were shown at this Broadway emporium today were there. They were not in the world those days.

Take the silk department; there were robes of net embroidery, with hand wrought combination coats, rich garments of lace over satin mousseline foundations, novelty side-hand ruffled patterns that glinted in the subdued light of the mummy metal whence its name was derived.

Pongees! Pongees! Pongees! until you can't rest. They showed the Rajah Pongees in delicate cream, rough Pongees never before shown in this market, and made in fact for this particular line.

There were also Satin Pongees, exquisitely dainty. There were new satin stripes in tints, cream and delicate blue and nimmable shades that left the onlooker bewildered with their soft, sidly beauty.

Suits and Costumes.

On the second floor were the suits and costumes. These were in distinctive and distinctively new styles. One of the most striking models was a champagne Chiffon Taffeta gown with hand skit with bias bands plied in baby blue. Waist with yoke of fillet lace and Mandarin sleeves, a copy of a Paris model by Her.

Another street gown which attracted considerable attention was a novelty silk in white and brown underlined in pin stripes of black, trimmed in brown with baby Irish yoke. The assortment of waists and lingerie was unusually fine.

One exquisite creation was a beautiful lingerie waist trimmed in bands of baby Irish lace with fagoted yoke, sleeves cut full and trimmed with Val lace hands.

The lingerie were wonderful in their variety and dainty prettiness. Counters were full of exquisite needle work, shelves filled with it, racks hung with it; every model known to the season was on exhibition. It was a show in itself.

Wash Goods.

No department showed to a better advantage than that where the various styles of wash goods were on display, soft as the finest silk, dainty as gauze, exquisite in coloring, with all the shades and the tones that brides and young girls delight in. There could be nothing much more attractive conceived.

There were French embroideries, laces, exquisite as imported silks. There were Paris Malls, sheer Madras waist material, rich and dainty enough for the robing of a queen.

Linen and Linen Embroidery.

One turned to behold the counters and shelves of the embroidery department overflowing with patterns as intricate and dainty as those our old friend, Jack Frost, used to trace over night on our window panes. The patterns seemed to be infinite in range. There were slight stripes, just wide enough to sew on to something else; there were intricate themes that fairly quivered with the throng of femininity's swirling past; there were wide bands of it, deep and massive patterns. Only a woman could say what they were used for, but they were undeniably pretty. Nearly all of these were imported by the firm from St. Gall, Switzerland.

The line of Parasols was in keeping with the rest of the display. Designers seemed to have reached the ne plus ultra in this class of spring goods, and Rudy's, as usual, have procured the best there is to be had for their trade.

Hosiery.

The hosiery display was never equaled in the city. Every conceivable color and shade was shown, the beautiful gauze like silks a shade or a tint for every gown, blacks and colors in plain and in embroidered patterns, to suit every fancy. The display could not have been more complete.

Carpets and Draperies.

The carpets and draperies were on the third floor. Cesar and Nero considered themselves long on this sort of property, but it is to be seriously questioned whether the stock of carpets displayed by Rudy's would have made the fiddle-playing monarch take a second seat in the orchestra. The best weaves of the looms of England and America, the richest patterns of Persia and India, and Rugs! Rugs! Rugs! from all over the world. There were rich Madras draperies and lace draperies and muslin draperies; they were in dainty patterns and in lovely conventional figures. They were in tints and shades and combinations, until it is safe to assert that any one who wanted draperies could have himself suited in this wonderful collection.

Millinery.

In conjunction with this opening, Mrs. Gilaray also had her display of millinery.

If there is any one thing that is harder for an average man to describe than ladies' hats it would be hard to find. From the exclamations of admiration heard, however, it would be safe to say that the throng of callers in this department were delighted with them.

It is especially noticeable that the prevailing mode of trimming runs largely to flowers. They are a joy to the feminine heart to behold, flowers of all conceivable shades, so dextrously blended into the most charming creations. There were large shapes and small shapes, high crowns and low crowns, one shape with a very wide brim and low crown, known as the "Merry Widow," being especially attractive. The display of moderately priced hats known as Gage hats, was unusually large and called for especial attention.

The magnificence of the exhibition was appreciated well by the public. The building had been artistically decorated with ferns, palms and trailing vines, and thousands of carnations were given away to visitors as souvenirs. It was a day of triumph for J. A. Rudy & Sons and a day of pleasure for all who were fortunate enough to take advantage of this unequalled display.

SHERIFF GETTING READY CRIMINAL DOCKET OF APRIL

Sheriff Ogilvie and his deputies have about completed the work of serving bench warrants on parties indicted at the last term of circuit court when it meets Monday, April 6. The sheriff's force will be busy in the meantime serving subpoenas on witnesses wanted.

The docket for the criminal term will be unimportant with the exception of two murder charges now on the docket, and another will be added in the case of George Freeman, who killed the negro woman, Essie Cobb, Saturday night. The other two are also woman murderers, Alex Wade, who killed Gertrude Pendleton, and Henry Bacon, who killed his wife. All three crimes were caused by jealousy.

Henry Bacon's attorney probably will make a plea of insanity and ask an investigation.

The murder charge against Stoney Ferguson will be continued, the docket being at large.

George Freeman is supposed to be a native of Cairo. He met Essie Cobb, who belonged to a respectable colored family, at Metropolis.

GOOD BLOOD

NATURE'S PROTECTION AGAINST DISEASE

The preservation of health and prevention against disease is almost entirely dependent upon pure, healthy blood; every organ, tissue, nerve and sinew of the body draws on this vital fluid for nourishment and strength. Poisons, humors and germs from various sources often get into the blood, and then this great life-stream becomes a source of infection and disease. Instead of a nourishing, health-sustaining fluid, heredity is likewise an important factor, regulating the quality of the blood. Some persons are born with tainted blood from diseased ancestry, and Scrofula in one of its numerous forms is sure to crop out some time in life. Not only poisons in the blood are responsible for disease, but when the circulation is run down and becomes poor and weak in quality, then we see the effect in a general bad condition of health, such as weakness, sallow complexion, boils, and various skin eruptions. All blood troubles require a tonic and blood purifier, and none

SOME CONVENTIONS

WILL DECIDE DISTRICT AND STATE DELEGATIONS.

Louisville Republicans Agree to Abide By Decisions of the Ward Conventions.

Louisville, March 19.—While many of the Fairbanks and Taft members of the Republican city and county committee say that matters were adjourned amicably at the special meeting last night, W. Marshall Ballitt was of the opinion that the Taft forces put things over the plate. Just as they did at the meeting two weeks ago, and got what they were fighting for all the time. At any rate, the congressional committee met after the city and county committee had made a few changes in the call issued two weeks ago, and endorsed the call for selecting delegates to the state convention, in that the same delegates selected to the state convention should be selected at the same time to a district convention to nominate a candidate for congress and select two delegates to the national Republican convention.

It was said that the harmonious meeting of the city and county committee was the result of a conference between Taft and Fairbanks representatives.

It was agreed and placed in the call that the 217 delegates selected April 25 from the city and county state convention should be selected for a congressional district convention to elect two delegates to the national Republican convention and to nominate a candidate for congress. This district convention will be held at Liederkreis hall, Sixth and Walnut streets, the night of May 5, it being the night before the meeting of the state convention, which is to be held May 11.

Ward Conventions Will Decide.

The endorsing of the action of the city and county committee by the congressional committee assures the fact that the fight for the Republican nomination for congress will be settled virtually at the ward conventions April 25. The fact that Robert C. Klunk is an announced Taft man and that Nat C. Cureton, his opponent, is an out-and-out Fairbanks man, means that it will be a battle royal between the Taft and Fairbanks forces at the convention polls. Should there be contests, and the chances are that there will be, the convention on the night of May 5 will be an unusually stormy affair. This, too, is agreed by the fact that the campaign for the Republican nomination for congress is now on. Some of the leaders wanted the nomination for congress made after the state convention, but the leaders thought that this would entail an unnecessary expense and for that reason they thought the whole business should be settled at once.

CLEVELAND IS 71

AND HE STILL ENJOYS PRETTY GOOD HEALTH.

Resists All Temptations to Return to Public Life—Many Congratulations.

Princeton, N. J., March 19.—Grover Cleveland, the only living ex-president of the United States, was 71 years old yesterday. Though he has lived in practical retirement since he left the white house more than ten years ago, Mr. Cleveland has not by any means been forgotten by his former political associates, his personal friends and his legion of admirers. This was evidenced by the receipt of countless letters and messages of congratulation. The felicitous greeting came from all sections of the country.

Mr. Cleveland will take no part in the coming presidential campaign. His intentions in this regard have been made plain to friends who have approached him on the subject. The anti-Bryan element among the Democrats of New Jersey would like to have had Mr. Cleveland go over the Denver convention as a delegate from this state. Old time Democrats in New York and throughout the east were ready to support the plan, but Mr. Cleveland could not be persuaded to give his consent. It is possible that the events of the coming campaign may so shape themselves as to bring from the ex-president a formal statement setting forth his views on the questions at issue, but he has given his friends to understand that so far as any public appearance or speech making goes he must be contented out.

At 71 years of age Mr. Cleveland is still in the enjoyment of pretty good health, thanks to the fishing and hunting trips and other forms of outdoor enjoyment. In magazine articles, in his conversation or his lectures to the students of Princeton, all the old power and clearness of thought are there.

SCHOOL NOTES

Replying to a letter sent by a girl in the fourth grade at Durham, N. C., little Miss Alene Trancher, a pupil of Miss Anna Larkin, of the fourth grade in the Washington building, mailed a letter today giving a description of Paducah. Several days ago Superintendent Carney received a letter from a pupil in the fourth grade at Durham, and asked the superintendent to hand it to some pupil in the fourth grade. Miss Trancher was selected to answer the letter, and she gave a good description of Paducah, and its advantages. The little Miss from Durham described the large factories that city has. It is probable that the two grades will continue the correspondence.

Tickets for the art exhibit have been distributed at all of the school buildings so that every pupil may have an opportunity to purchase one. Superintendent Carney is anxious that the parents as well as the children view these reproductions of the world's masterpieces. Every child selling $1 worth of tickets will be entitled to a ticket. For adults the admission is 15 cents and for children 10 cents.

This morning at opening exercise the High School students had a pleasant musical program. Miss Caroline Ham, supervisor of music, sang several songs from the "Merry Widow," and Misses Bess Lane, and Eunice Robertson played a duet.

SEWER COMMITTEE

AGREES TO PROPOSITION OF MR. GEORGE WEIKEL.

Will Build Sewer Across His Property on Condition That He List It at $8,000 Value.

The sewer committee of the general council met last night and decided to accept Mr. George Welkel's proposition that if the city would build a sewer through the square of low land owned by Welkel between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets on Broadway, he would list the property at $8,000 for city tax purposes. At present the property is practically worthless and is listed at $800. It is estimated that the sewer will cost $2,200.

It was also decided to refer the controversy with William Borneman, in regard to the cost of some sewerage built across his property, to the city engineer for settlement.

Fireless Stoves.

Fireless stoves, or self-cookers, as they are variously known, have been in use in Germany for a number of years. The earlier types were merely boxes constructed with double walls or by secret processes built so as to retain the heat when sealed. Those cookers are used as follows: After a thorough heating the food to be stewed or boiled is placed inside the box sealed and left for sufficient time when it is opened and the food cooked by the retained heat, is ready to serve. Recently a Berlin company has improved upon the apparatus and produced a fireless stove that not only cooks but fries and roasts. Frying and roasting are accomplished by the use of a heated stone—Exchange.

PARASITES THAT SAP LIFE EXPELLED BY NEW METHOD

The interest created in leading cities during the past year by young Mr. Cooper with his new preparation, is largely accounted for by a peculiar quality possessed by this medicine, which he calls his New Discovery.

Mr. Cooper believes that internal parasites, or tapeworms, are responsible for much ill health, and it is an undoubted fact that his medicine has expelled immense numbers of these creatures in various cities visited by him. The young man also believes that stomach trouble is the main cause of all ill health. He claims that few can have poor health with a good digestion. He further claims that his New Discovery medicine does nothing but tone up the stomach, yet it not only expels the parasites, but relieves many other ailments not as a rule associated with stomach trouble.

Little Jessie Birdsall, daughter of Mrs. Ida Birdsall, living at 2143 Calhoun avenue, Chicago, is among many relieved of a large parasite by Mr. Cooper's preparation during his stay in that city. In speaking of the matter to Mr. Cooper, the mother said: "My child, Jessie, who is fourteen years old, has been suffering with this trouble for over seven years. Until this morning we did not know what the trouble was. She was extremely nervous; the least little thing would upset her; her tongue was coated and at times she would have a good appetite, then again could not bear the sight of food; she was restless at night, had bad breath, especially when she got up in morning. We tried everything to relieve her. At last with no success. We were just on the point of giving up trying anything else when we began to read of Cooper's New Discovery. Several days ago we purchased this medicine. As soon as we had used it regularly, this morning this parasite left her system. I don't wonder that she has a way felt bad, and nothing we've done gave her seemed to relieve her. Now that she is relieved of this tapeworm I feel sure that she will grow better each day, and enjoy perfect health. Mr. Cooper, your medicine is worth a thousand times more than you charge for it. I know a number of people troubled the same way as Jessie has been, and I certainly expect to tell them personally to try your medicine."

DETAILS SLOWLY COME TO LIGHT

Conference Between Roosevelt
Gompers and Low.

Gompers Prefers to Let Sherman Law
Stand Rather Than Yield
Strike Weapon.

DISAGREE ABOUT THE ROYCOTT.

Washington, March 19.—Details of the conference held between Seth Low of New York, president of the Civic Federation, and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, which are slowly coming to light, indicate that labor is not yet committed to legislation about to be urged by President Roosevelt along the lines recommended by the Civic Federation. That there is a difference of opinion that threatens to overturn the program was learned from authoritative sources. Low is said to have returned to New York much discouraged.

Officials of the American Federation of Labor are said to be withholding their support from the program because the president feels that he cannot indorse legislation which would legalize trade boycotts by labor unions. The provision of the proposed bill exempting labor organizations from operations of the Sherman anti-trust law was the medium through which it was intended to secure full indorsement by the American Federation of Labor.

At a conference at the white house which Gompers attended, it appears that organized labor was in complete accord with the program of the Civic Federation. Later, however, Gompers conferred with associates in the American Federation and the consensus of opinion was that the president in his message to congress should recognize the right of organized labor to withhold its trade from the concern whose manner of conducting its business is inimical to organized labor.

It is said the president would not agree to this. It is said that Gompers would prefer that the Sherman anti-trust laws should continue to apply to labor unions rather than consent to a program which might eventually stifle for all time the use of the boycott as a weapon.

Meantime the president's ideas in regard to the proposed measure urging a general relief measure, according to persons who have discussed the subject with him, have undergone a change. If the message is sent to congress it will not be until after the Eighteen Republican Senators Must Face Election by Legislatures.

Civil Federation's bill has been introduced.

This bill will be offered in the house next week by Representative Hapburn of Iowa. The president has not found a senator who approves the measure, on whom he is willing to place the responsibility of championing the measure in the upper body. Therefore the bill is not to be introduced simultaneously in both branches of congress, it will depend upon the fate of the bill in the house whether it reaches the senate at all.

Tobacco Tenants Going South.
Emmence, Ky., March 19.—Concern of action on the part of local tobacco tenants to migrate southward is becoming more than noticeable at this point at this time.

Eight tenants left here this morning to go to Alabama, and it is understood that others and their families will follow. This new move is being experienced throughout the entire burley district.

Scott earned from $50,000 to $75,000 a year by his pen for several years. For eleven novels and nine volumes of tales he received $550,000.

Washington, March 19.—Eighteen Republican senators must submit their claims for re-election to legislatures that will be chosen this year. Most of them either will succeed themselves or be succeeded by other Republicans in all likelihood. But it is said that not in many years have so many senators had serious opposition in their own party to their return.

Ankeny, of Washington, has strong opposition at home; so has Fulton, of Oregon. Senator Furaker's situation in Ohio is so well known as to need only reference. The Churchill faction in New Hampshire is actively on the trail of Senator Gallinger, and it has the support of the national administration, which has been trying to help the Churchill crowd. Senator Hansbrough, of North Dakota, faces a close fight within his own party. He is charged at home with being a corporation senator, though, curiously enough, Washington has regarded him as decidedly of the progressive class on his record here. Kittredge, of South Dakota, is another man whose toga is sought by the chief executive of his state. Governor Crawford is making a great campaign in the state.

Opposition to Smoot Gaming.

Senator Platt, of New York, has said recently, when asked whether he expected to be a candidate for another term, that he had not decided what he would do. However, there is no expectation that he will be a factor in the Empire state situation. This polygamy question is being revived in Utah and with a vigor which suggests that that state is likely to develop into something like a permanent condition of such and anti-church parties, with the Republican allied with the Mormons. The opposition to Smoot is gaining ground, according to recent reports, and Republicans in the state are much worried.

Scene from 'The Red Mill,' at The Kentucky Monday night.

Senator Spooner, of Wisconsin, is expected to be a candidate for another term, though the election last winter was opposed by his opponents. A single for the unexpired part of Senator Spooner's term two years. However, the Wisconsin was likely the business and his friends have gathered that he is likely to run again. If he does he is likely to win, as he will be stronger now than before and no combination could be arranged to defeat him last year.

Senator Long, of Kansas, has a fight on hand which is reported to be growing more determined month by month. W. R. Stidley, millionaire, politician and boss, is out for the place and so is J. L. Hiltow, former assistant postmaster general. The fight on Long is based on the charge that he has been too good a friend to the corporations and Kansas does not want that sort of thing.

Anderson county for Taft.

Lawrenceburg, Ky., March 19.—Chairman T. J. Hillard, of this city, has issued a call for a meeting of the Eleventh district committee to be held here Thursday afternoon for the purpose of determining the time and manner of selecting one elector, two delegates and two alternates to be voted for November 3, also a state central committee will be selected. While it was not in the call it is thought that the time and manner of selecting a nominee for congress will be decided of. The Hon. W. O. Bradley, senator-elect, will be here in the interest of Fairbanks for president. Anderson is a strong Taft county and there will likely be a warm fight.

Living for others is an imperative of the higher life.

A STYLE EXPOSITION Of Extreme Interest

TOMORROW THE STYLE STORE will make its first display of the prevailing modes for Spring 1908, and the new things shown in every department will indeed be a revelation of the beautiful and timely. There are three qualifications which every bit of merchandise which comes into our store must fulfill before it is given place: The QUALITY must be unimpeachable, the STYLE up to the very minute and the PRICE reasonable and as low, or lower, than our competitors. Never in our history have we been so perfectly satisfied that all these qualifications have been met. The only thing which lacks now is your confirmation of our judgment and we know that if you are among those present tomorrow we shall have that, too. We shall be delighted to have you come and bring your friends.

In the Suit Department

One of the most attractive offerings in the Suit Department is the Madam Butterfly Suit, a style shown exclusively by us, and there are also a host of other beautiful models, the most extreme as well as the most conservative styles. In fabric, there is a profusion of the new Elephant and Snake shades of gray and tan.

Dress Goods Department

In the Dress Goods Department we are certainly sustaining the reputation which this store has for years borne among critical ladies of Paducah and Western Kentucky. Dress Goods are one of our specialties and you have a right to expect from us the most complete sort of display in new things. The display embraces innumerable variations of the colors which have caught on for this spring's wear—Copenhagen Blues, Electric Blues, Browns, Tans in the ultra-fashionable Snake and Elephant shades which predominate. Fabrics are Voiles, Panamas, Batistes and Serges.

The Dainty New Silks

Every fashion paper you pick up is full of delighted comment on the rough silks which are to be worn so much this spring, and probably at no other store in Paducah will you find such an extensive display of them from which to make your choice. There are the new Rajah Silks in all shades, Tuscan Silks in the worsted effect, Pongees in all shades, as well as the smooth and lustrous Satin and Silk finish Foulards.

Wash Goods for Spring

This Wash Goods display of ours is a matter of especial pride with us, for we have been preparing for it for many months. There is a vast showing of all the prevailing novelties—the French Organdies, Fancy Dress Linens, the bordered Nouveautés, Chiffon Lisse and Imported Batistes. The designers have fairly outdone themselves this spring in the matter of colorings and the new effects will certainly prove themselves a revelation.

See the Hindoo Magician

Madam Rheda will perform some brand new feats of Hindoo magic tomorrow. There will be four performances every day this week: At 11 a. m., 2:30, 3:30 and 4:30 p. m. You are cordially invited to come and bring the children; they will enjoy her mystifying work.

Novelties and Dress Accessories

This announcement would be incomplete without an enthusiastic reference to the display we make of those thousand and one little things which add effectiveness to Missy's toilette—the Anthony Belt, the Anthony Bag, Merry Widow Neckwear, Merry Widow Belts, Fancy Collars, New Rushings, Chamois Gloves, Belt Pins and many other things which you will like.
